

GLADSTONE'S SPEECH

Leads the Liberal Attack on Lord Salisbury in the House.

OUTLINES THE COMING POLICY,

And Denounces the Action of the Government in Ignoring the Verdict of the People as Expressed at the Polls—The Grand Old Man Greeted With Cheers—His Utterances Received With Enthusiasm. Balfour Replies.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—The house of commons was crowded to its full capacity before the business of the day was commenced, as it was expected Mr. Gladstone would resume the debate on the address in reply to the queen's speech. His appearance in the house was a signal for ringing cheers from his adherents. Mr. Gladstone was greeted with loud and prolonged applause when he arose to speak. He opened his address by referring to the procedure of the government in departing from precedents in not resigning when the verdict of the country was against them.

The house had met, Mr. Gladstone said, but they did not know for what. [Cheers.] The queen's speech told them nothing. Was it a fact, he said, that the judgment of the nation was without appeal? Was the house of commons to fight the battles of six years over again? Never had there been a great issue submitted to the country that had been so fully discussed as the issue decided at the last general election. The government was perfectly aware of that. They knew well what a majority of the house had come prepared to give effect to the verdict of their constituents. [Cheers.] They could not do otherwise.

Turning to the matter of home rule amid wild cheers, Mr. Gladstone said that the claims of Ireland had been for years at the fore front of the battle and that that position was now held. The principles of his home rule bill were pretty well known. By its provisions there would be a full and effectual maintenance of imperial supremacy, while Ireland would be given the conduct of her own affairs. Irish representation in the house of commons was also contemplated under certain conditions. As to the form in which these principles would be embodied it was the duty of the Liberals to select the best form, but not until they had been placed in power.

Mr. Gladstone said that in justice to the government he must say that they were entitled to credit for what they did toward reaching the distress by the land act of 1887, but that came too late. It was not associated with the administration of laws in harmony with the sympathies of the people. As he had been asked questions respecting the continuance of coercion, he would reply at once that the coercion bill ought not to be retained on the statute book longer than required by parliamentary usage. [Cries of "hear, hear."] Mr. Gladstone then proceeded to refer to the government's legislation. He credited them with the conversion of the national debt, but complained that they had inflicted on Ireland a gross wrong in making her pretend to be a local government bill to be limited to satisfy Irish wants, or to offer any solution of the Irish troubles.

The house, said Mr. Gladstone, would address itself seriously to a bill giving Ireland a government. It would pass the house of commons and then go to the house of lords. He would not argue upon the probability of the house of lords rejecting the bill. If the measure passed the house of commons, never would the house of lords have before them a question of greater importance to the empire at large, never a greater question to themselves. [Opposition cheers.] The obligations of a liberal government would utterly forbid acquiescence in the rejection of those obligations. To promote the settlement of a great subject it would remain unweakened and unchanged. [Cheers.] At the same time it would be necessary to deal in 1893 with a sensible portion of British wants; the demand for which had been accelerated. [Cries of "hear, hear, hear."] Referring to the amnesty of Irish prisoners, Mr. Gladstone said it was impossible for other than responsible ministers to give any pledge either for revision or remission of sentences.

In regard to evicted tenants, he expressed the hope that during the autumn a voluntary arrangement between landlords and tenants would obviate the necessity for such legislation as would become inevitable if no arrangements were made. Mr. Balfour followed Mr. Gladstone in a speech.

TRAIN ROBBERS FOILED.

A Faithful Watchman Gives Timely Warning and the Plot Fails.

PARIS, TEXAS, Aug. 9.—As the out-bound Texas and St. Louis express approached Winston tunnel on the Frisco road last night it was flagged by the tunnel watchman, who said that ten or twelve armed men had visited a residence near there and made very particular inquiries concerning the train. The conductor went to Winston station, and as the train started back three armed men who had got aboard at Winston jumped off and disappeared in the thick fog. The superintendent at Fort Smith was notified and a strong force of deputy marshals went down and guarded the train through. When the train first left Winston station a shot was fired on the mountain side nearby. This was quickly repeated near the tunnel and it is supposed that it was for a signal for the gang at the west end that the train was coming. It was found they had prepared for the head up at a high trestle near the west end.

RAILROAD TELEGRAPHERS

May Demand Increased Pay—Another Strike Brewing.

Pittsburgh, Pa., August 9.—On the 16th, 17th and 18th of the present month an important convention of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers will be held in this city, and it is understood that a grievance committee which has been at work for some time, will present a report, and, if approved, a demand will be made for increased pay. It has not yet transpired what the complaints and demands will be, but the convention's action will be watched with interest.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW EMBARRASSING.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 9.—The execution of the eight-hour law as applied to the construction of public buildings has proved so embarrassing to the officials of the treasury department that the attorney general has been asked for a legal construction of the provisions of the act.

A SAD TRAGEDY.

Judge Normile, of St. Louis, Crased By a Newspaper Criticism, Kills Himself. Four Other Suicides Reported From That City.

St. Louis, August 6.—A most startling climax to the action for libel recently begun by Judge J. C. Normile, of the St. Louis criminal court, against the Post-Dispatch, of this city, came this forenoon a little before 11 o'clock in the suicide by poison of the plaintiff, Judge Normile, at his residence at 1422 Washington avenue.

Criticism of the administration of Judge Normile's court was precipitated recently by a statement that four members of his grand jury had combined to prevent the indictment of persons with a pull. The matter resulted in the judge suing the newspaper for $400,000, and also instituting criminal libel proceedings against three of the paper's editors, Florence D. White and his assistants, Samuel Williams and George S. Johns.

Yesterday the judge went on the stand to give testimony in his suit. He was on the stand most of the day and was much disturbed by the close, sharp questions by the contending counsel. Investigation showed that the recent occurrence and the criticism had so borne upon the man's mind that he could endure it no longer. A note, unsigned, but in the judge's handwriting, contained the statement that he had this morning determined to kill Florence D. White, whose paper had criticized, as he thought unjustly, the administration of his court. Preferring suicide to murder, and seeing no other course he had determined on the former, taking poison.

As if the atmosphere were laden with suicidal mania, for several suicides were reported in quick succession, Walter D. Coles, a young lawyer having an office in the Bank of Commerce building, shot himself to death, through being in financial trouble, at his office at Third and Market street.

Dr. Maxon Folhaez, despondent and "out of luck," shot himself fatally. Two more violent deaths of residents of the South End also came at about the same hour.

A CANNIBAL'S TEETH.

The Weapons With Which He Inflicted Wounds on His Tormentors.

New Brunswick, N. J., August 9.—John Lucas, known as an African Zulu, rode well nigh naked on top of a circus wagon in a parade here yesterday. Boys gazed at him, and finally employed eggs and fruit. This so enraged the alleged Zulu that he sprang from the wagon with a war whoop and attacked the boys like a savage beast, biting into their flesh wherever he could fasten his teeth. The boys screamed, and a crowd of men went to their assistance. Before the negro could be driven off, however, he had severely bitten John Hickey on the arm, James Johnson on the neck and Robert Appleton on the chest. One time it looked like a riot, as stones and other missiles were thrown at the black assailant. Policemen with drawn clubs kept the crowd back and succeeded in getting their prisoner safely to the station house.

The injured boys were taken to the nearest drug store where their wounds were dressed, after which they were sent home. Hickey is most seriously injured. The part of his arm where he was bitten is badly swollen and there is danger of blood poisoning. The prisoner, when arraigned today, pretended at first that he did not understand English, but finally talked freely. He claimed that the boys had provoked him to attack them. He was held on a charge of mayhem.

Monmouth Races.

MOCKMOUTH PARK RACE TRACK, August 3.—Champion day was favored with fair weather, a fast track and 10,000 spectators. The expected feature of the programme, the Junior champion stakes, resulted in a hollow victory for Don Alonzo, the giant son of Long Taw and Round Dance, he winning the $15,440 prize in the commonest of canter. In fact, it was no race at all, as far as first money was concerned. Alonzo's immense stature enabled him to take two strides to his opponents' one. He covered the six furlongs in 1:12. Summary:

First race—Seven furlongs; Kingston won. Time, 1:35. Second race—Six furlongs; Trouble won. Time, 1:14. Third race—Six furlongs; Don Alonzo won. Time, 1:12. Fourth race—Champion stakes, mile and a quarter; Lamplighter won. Time, 2:32. Fifth race—Mile and one furlong; Julien won. Time, 1:53. Sixth race—One mile; Nomad won. Time, 1:41.

Guy Brumfield Falls Into the Clutches of the L.V. at Charleston. Special Dispatch to the Intelligence.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., August 9.—Charleston had a criminal sensation yesterday. Guy Brumfield, a nephew of the famous desperado Paris Brumfield, who was killed by his own son a short time ago, and Jim Elliott, came to Charleston three weeks ago. Brumfield posed as a United States detective, and was found out but not convicted on account of lack of evidence. Numerous mysterious robberies have been reported in and about Charleston, and yesterday enough evidence was secured to arrest them. They have, it seems, been laying low during the day time and prowling around during the nights thieving right and left. On Brumfield's person was found a quantity of counterfeit money, burglar's tools, gold watches and other valuables, signed forged checks on a Huntington bank and all the paraphernalia of a professional crook. Both were committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

LAID TO REST.

Burial of the Mother of Commissioner of Internal Revenue John W. Mason. Special Dispatch to the Intelligence.

GRAFTON, W. VA., August 9.—The remains of the late Mrs. Susan B. Mason were laid to rest in Bluemont cemetery this morning at 10 o'clock.

The funeral was largely attended by the many bereaved friends of the deceased. Rev. J. H. Flanagan officiated at the interment services.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Thomas E. Davis, John S. S. Herr, Samuel H. Gram, Charles Kunst, C. H. Rector and J. W. Hamilton.

The deceased was the mother of the Hon. John W. Mason, who, with his brother, Dr. A. B. Mason, brought the remains from Washington, D. C., this morning to repose by the side of the husband and father, who died eight years ago.

Mrs. Mason was born in Loudon County, Va., November 11, 1808, where she spent her childhood. About the year 1822 she moved to Monongalia County, West Virginia, where she lived the greater part of her life. During the past three years she made her home in Washington, D. C., with her son, the Hon. John W. Mason. It was there that she passed away, on August 7th, after a brief illness.

The heartfelt sympathy of this entire community goes out to her distinguished son and his esteemed brother, Dr. A. B. Mason, in their bereavement.

CALDWELL, O., August 9.—A little child of J. H. Young, residing at Sarahsville, Noble county, fell into an open cistern yesterday and was drowned before assistance could rescue it from its watery grave.

Sand Hill Republicans.

To the Editor of the Intelligence.

Sir:—Three times three for our national, state and county tickets.

Never in the history of this community were our people more on tiptoe to catch the first news from Huntington; and, when it came, disappointment came also, because our people had centered on the Hon. G. W. Atkinson to carry West Virginia into the promised land—yet nevertheless the long roll has been sounded to fall in for hard work.

Never were our people more solid than now, determined, if possible, to take our state out of the solid South. Our young men, to this end, have buckled on their armor and are taking an active part in this campaign. They have already their picket posted and skirmishers deployed; and when the order comes to fall into line of battle for the grand assault on the 8th of November next they will help to roll up such a tidal wave of votes to join the avalanche that is coming from all over our state as will not only knock the bottom out of the free trade policy, but also send to hades "twism" forever.

THE only reason for Mr. Cleveland's nomination, and the thing that forced his nomination in spite of all the efforts of politicians, was the fact that, in the minds of the Democratic masses, he represents the idea of free trade. The platform is an unmistakable declaration against all parleying with protection. It puts the Democratic party in the field as committed to the policy of sweeping away every shred of a protective duty.—Henry George, the Free Trader.
